Hey Joe, its your BIGGEST fan from North Dakota, and I just wanted to wish you a Happy 24th Birthday!!! I watched your biography thing on television, that was very cool:). I didnt think that Tony would be on there but there he was at the end of the show LIVE! I called Ashley(his girlfriend, my cousin) and said Your boyfriend was just on the Joe Mauer biography thing and she said to me Whitney hunny I know I am standing right next to him!!!! I am watching the game in Seattle right now you guys are kicking so butt!!! 6-2 Yeehaw Good Luck with the rest of the season and I will talk to you later
GO JOE MAUER#7(That`s Right)
Love ~Whitney Ann~

Happy Birthday Joe! Can't wait to see you break more records, become MVP, and get inducted into the baseball hall of fame. But until then keep doing what you do best, catch for our MN Twins! Can't wait to see you at the ballpark this summer! Hope your day is fabulous! Good luck! :)

04/16/07 Sarah Shoreview, MN writes:

Happy B-day Joe! I just have to inform you of an interesting fact. My dad grew up in St. Paul too, and he went to St. Columba elementary with your dad! Nothing amazing, but I think that's really cool! I agree with Haley, almost all of these entries are written by idolized girls! haha! Ever since I was born, I've been a Twins fan. I have a video of me watching the twins world series rally in '91. Ever since you have gotten picked #1, I knew you were going to be the base of this team. Something told me that you would be a legend when you only struck out once in high school! Oh, my goodness! During marching band practice, me and this staff member always talk about you and the twins. The Irondale Marching Knights love you! Well, I better go. Looking forward to watching you tomorrow! ~Sarah~
